Yesterday afternoon the office was filled with those already accepted, filling out their alletment of pay blanks and others for insurance.

Plan Splendid Send-off The entire unit of recruits will leave here early next month, and will be given one of the most enthusiastic sendoffs ever accorded to men going forth to battle.

In this war the duties of engineer rooms are so varied that any man with technical training can be so placed hat he may employ his training with dvantage to his country and with proit to himself.

Duties Are Manifold

Engineer troops are charged with reconnoitering and surveying for military purposes and the preparation of maps of the theater of operations; examination of routes of communications for supplies and for military novements; construction and repair of coads, railroads and bridges; military demolitions; the conduct of gas and lame warfare; the operation of 'tanks'; the location, design and con-truction of wharves, piers, landings, torehouses, hospitals and other strucures of general necessity.

All of this falls on the engineers.

The man building a road over which motor trucks rush bombs to the front a doing work just as important as the nan on the gun that finally throws the bombs in the enemy trench. Who May Enlist

Any man who is physically qualified, between the age of eighteen and twen y-one, or thirty and forty may volintarily enlist for the engineer organzation provided he proves to the re-cruiting officer that he is experienced r skilled in any engineering trade, or is a "handy man" who is especially suited for engineering work.

What is most inspiring this call for ccruits is that the little booklets which the army engineer comps sends out to United States Needs Skilled Engineers for France'. The last word has the most meaning of all.
